Description

Regency-style mirror with glazing beads - Late 19th centuryA majestic Regency-style mirror dating from the late 19th century, crafted from finely carved wood and richly gilded with gold leaf. It immediately captivates with the elegance of its flowing lines and the abundance of its decorative motifs--including shells, scrolls, and clasps--characteristic of the extensive decorative repertoire of the French Regency period.Its composition, featuring glazing bars, highlights a central mirror framed by secondary panels, lending depth and refinement. The original gilding has developed a superb, warm, and authentic patina, with a few tiny signs of wear and minor imperfections that simply attest to its history and enhance its charm.The back retains its original oak paneling, a testament to the quality of craftsmanship and stability. The piece is structurally sound, highly decorative, and in excellent condition.With its generous dimensions--approximately 150 to 160 cm high by 100 cm wide--this mirror will naturally find its place in an entryway, living room, fireplace area, or elegant bedroom. It will bring light, depth, and the timeless splendor of 18th-century French decor, reimagined by the great workshops of the late 19th century.A piece full of character--both spectacular and refined--that fits just as well in a classic interior as it does in a contemporary setting seeking a striking focal point.
