Description

A beautiful drop-front cabinet, likely from the Romagna region, dating from the first half of the 18th century. It features a curved front and flared sides, while the veneer is made of walnut and rosewood with maple fillets separating the different types of burl wood. The linings on the back and inside the drawers are all period pieces made of fir wood, an indication that allows us to place it within the Apennine region between the Marche and Romagna. This is a fairly rare piece of furniture in excellent condition, as it is entirely original. If requested, we will arrange for polishing and cleaning to be performed by our trusted restorer. The piece is offered at a bargain price. Its dimensions are 133 cm maximum width x 58 cm x 107 cm in height. A historical certificate of authenticity is included with the
