Description

Sentencing notice, printed in Douai in 1818 by Wagrez-Taffin, printer to the Royal Court. It reproduces the judgment of the Douai Assize Court dated January 6, 1818, sentencing Benoît Dupas, a 29-year-old day laborer, found guilty of stealing a donkey in Féchain, to five years' imprisonment and one hour of public display in the stocks in the town square of Douai. Header bearing the royal coat of arms of France. An interesting account of the justice system during the Restoration, at a time when sentences were made public by posting notices. Douai, 1818. Printed by Wagrez-Taffin. Shows signs of use, with creases and foxing. Simple gilded wood frame. Dimensions: 545 × 430 mm.
