Description

Important haute couture necklace designed by Jean-Louis Scherrer, made in France in the 1980s. The necklace consists of a series of wide, articulated links in gold-plated metal, with a deliberately irregular and faceted design, alternating with narrower elements entirely studded with white rhinestones. The central section features three large, faceted polygonal elements in an orange-amber hue, set in gold mountings. Their warm hue and geometric shape contrast with the brilliance of the metal and rhinestones, giving the piece a particularly striking presence. The bold, sculptural design of this necklace is characteristic of 1980s couture jewelry, a period during which Jean-Louis Scherrer created spectacular sets designed to complement his collections. The circular clasp is
