Description

We are offering for sale an absolutely exceptional, museum-quality, and extremely rare pair of antique earrings dating from the late Victorian era, around 1880. This piece of goldsmith's work likely originates from Malta, dating to the era of the "Grand Tour." The famous eight-pointed Maltese cross is suspended by a hinged joint from a filigree royal crown. The front is elegantly polished, while the back features the characteristic 19th-century brushed texture, crafted by hand. The historic swan-neck hooks are in their original condition and fully functional. Excellent condition, worthy of a collection. The earrings have a total weight of 4.10 g. The gold has been tested, and the earrings are hallmarked. Length: 30 mm Width: 10.3 mm
