Description

French Mid-Century Alabaster Table Lamp with a Carved, Strict-Geometric Face, 1960sThe lamp has a clear, almost archaic appearance.The base (diameter at the bottom 12 cm) is conical in shape and has a ribbed, open-pored surface. The striking face at the front is reminiscent of Art Deco forms, with all levelsof the face designed using straight, geometric surfaces.The shade has a linear, ribbed surface and is also slightly conical (diameter at the bottom 21 cm - at the top 22.5 cm).The almost straight shape of the shade perfectly complements the austere figure and sits on an iron bracket.Weight 11.5 kg, newly electrified.Overall, the lamp is a very beautiful, handcrafted, modern object made of stone.Alabaster is a gypsum stone that is easy to work with and is ideal for sculptures.The material
