Description

Large armchair from the early 18th century, in the Louis XIII-Louis XIV style, made of solid walnut. It rests on two baluster-style front legs and two square-sectioned rear legs. They are connected by an H-shaped crossbar turned in the baluster style. The backrest is flat and tall, slightly angled outward for greater comfort; the top is shaped like a gendarme's cap. The armrests are curved and rest on baluster-turned supports. Our chair is very comfortable; in fact, both the seat and the upholstery have been recently reupholstered, and it features a beautiful finish (fringed trim and pyramid-shaped tacks). Please note some previous repairs, notably on the right rear leg (a small raised section) as well as a chip on the left rear leg; see the last photo. This chair offers great comfort and
