Description

Large oil on canvas attributed to Franz Werner von Tamm (1658-1724), a German painter who specialized in still lifes and animal scenes and was active primarily in Rome and later in Vienna. The composition depicts a rooster and a hen surrounded by several guinea pigs and a rabbit, set against a landscape. The naturalistic rendering of the animals and the choice of subjects are characteristic of animal compositions developed around 1700. Attributed to Franz Werner von Tamm. Late 17th-early 18th century. Oil on canvas, re-stretched.
