Description

A poetic composition representative of the work of Éloi-Noël Béraud (known as Marc Aldine / Antoine Bouvard), depicting a Venetian canal lined with historic palaces bathed in the golden light of late afternoon. A gondola glides across the shimmering water. Signature: A brass cartouche or plaque bearing the name "MARC ALDINE" affixed to the Marie-Louise frame; the artist's original signature appears in the lower left corner of the canvas. Another work by the same artist is available that could serve as a companion piece. Period: First half of the 20th century. Frame: Imposing carved and gilded wooden frame with a motif of acanthus leaves and shells, adorned with a fabric Marie-Louise mat. Characteristics & Condition: Condition: The canvas and paint layer are in good overall condition. Slight signs of wear
