Description

A striking mid-20th-century French ceramic pitcher by Robert Picault, the celebrated Vallauris ceramicist known for his bold geometric designs and distinctive Mediterranean palette.

Handcrafted in glazed earthenware, this decorative jug features a generous rounded body, a slender neck, a flared rim with a shaped pouring spout, and an elegant loop handle. The cream-colored ground is richly decorated in deep cobalt blue with alternating bands of triangles and Greek key motifs. These rhythmic patterns emphasize the pitcher's sculptural form and give it a fresh, graphic character that remains remarkably contemporary. The hand-painted decoration, subtle variations in the glaze, and visible potter's wheel marks lend the piece the individual charm associated with artisan ceramics. Signed "R. Picault" in blue beneath the base. This attractive vessel would make a beautiful addition to a collection of French studio pottery or Vallauris ceramics. It can be displayed alone as a statement piece, used as a vase for flowers, or grouped with other blue-and-white ceramics. The pitcher remains in good vintage condition, with minor surface irregularities and traces of age consistent with its handmade character and previous use. Please refer closely to the photographs for a detailed view of its condition. Dimensions : H 24.5 cm (9.65 in.) × W 20.5 cm (8.07 in.) × D 13 cm (5.12 in.)
