Paris, circa 1800 Pair of candlesticks resting on a circular base decorated with a frieze of palmettes, pearls, and a knurled trellis. The fluted shaft and the Medicis-style bowl rest on a palmette-decorated pedestal. The burnishing is of very fine quality. A prestigious model This pair of candelabra is a variation of a model now preserved in the collections of the Château de Fontainebleau. Inventories indicate that they adorned Marshal Duroc's apartment in 1807. Another variation also adorned the Salon of the ground-floor apartment in the Cour Ovale in 1810. Numerous models of candlesticks with fluted shafts and inverted leaves, along with their variations, were produced
