Description

An exquisite majolica albarello made in Urbania in the 18th century, decorated with an elegant naturalistic landscape featuring birds among trees, shrubs, and polychrome plant motifs. The decoration, executed in delicate shades of blue, green, yellow, and ochre on a white background, reflects the quality of 18th-century Urbino pottery, renowned for the vibrancy of its landscapes and the balance of its ornamental compositions. The double-domed shape with a ring foot recalls the classic vessels used in old pharmacies.
