Description

A large rectangular table made of cream-colored stone and travertine , with a monumental and highly decorative appearance.It features a large rectangular travertine top with a molded, slightly overhanging border, resting on two powerful sculpted legs in the shape of winged griffins facing each other.Each support consists of two fantastical creatures standing back-to-back, with expressive heads, outstretched wings, and powerful legs ending in large claws.The entire piece rests on molded rectangular bases.The design draws directly from the antique and neoclassical repertoire, as the griffin is a motif particularly favored in architectural and furniture designs inspired by Greco-Roman antiquity.With its generous dimensions and the sculptural presence of its base, this table can be used as a
