Description

Large oil on canvas depicting the "Languid Venus," inspired by Leonardo da Vinci, showing Venus reclining naked on her back, with a cartouche on the left featuring the face of Venus as painted by Leonardo da Vinci. A true bridge between classicism and contemporary art, this large nude painting depicting a languid Venus is a major work by the painter Jean-Gabriel Mondié. As part of a captivating neo-mythological movement, the artist reinvents the iconic figure of the goddess of beauty through a bold and highly graphic composition. The female body, sculpted by soft light and highly sensual modeling, unfolds against a dark background structured by crackled texture effects and geometric lines. A scholarly nod to art history, a cartouche on the left evokes the face of Venus painted by Leonardo da Vinci,
