Description

In the late 19th century, Symbolist artists found the ideal medium for depicting the immateriality of dreams and the mystery of the human spirit in the powdery, ethereal, and delicate texture of pastel. The female figure becomes an enigmatic muse, a chimera, or a pensive figure locked in silence. Odilon Redon, Jean-Francis Auburtin, and Lucien Lévy-Dhurmer are the most accomplished artists in this genre. Our pastel, however, remains unattributed for the time being...
