Description

This 19th-century French Rococo-style mirror is a richly sculpted piece that captures the opulence and theatrical elegance of the period. Carved in oak and finished with a warm gilt surface, the frame displays an abundance of flowing scrolls, floral motifs, and expressive ornamentation. At the crest, two beautifully carved figures flank a central flourish, adding a sense of movement and artistry that defines the Rococo aesthetic.

The mirror's generous proportions and intricate detailing give it a commanding presence on the wall. Its gilded finish brings depth and luminosity, while the craftsmanship reveals the hand of a skilled woodcarver working in the tradition of 18th-century French decorative arts.
