Description

Pair of solid oak Louis XV-style connecting doors from the 18th century. Double-sided, with deep molding on all four panels. Retaining their original patina, these doors have preserved all of their period hardware: six large "moustache" hinges, original lock and rosette-style pull knob on the right door / beautiful cremone bolt with locking mechanism on the left door. In very good condition, they would fit easily into a character-filled renovation project! Of very high quality, these doors are 5/6 cm thick.
