Description

A splendid abstract artwork dating from 1963. It is a work on paper, created using a mixed media technique that combines watercolor or water-soluble ink with precise strokes of black India ink. The composition is structured around a large circular motif in a golden-orange color in the upper left, evoking a sun or a cosmic form, which overlooks a series of complex, thread-like structures in the foreground. These precisely drawn black lines create the impression of scaffolding, mechanisms, or spiderwebs, juxtaposing rigid geometry with the fluidity of the ochre and blue-gray washes in the background. The work possesses a beautiful depth and a balance between linear dynamism and chromatic softness. The work is hand-signed in the lower left corner and dated "63." It is
