Description

Painted bark collected in the Washkuk hills area in Papua New Guinea. Kwoma ethnic group. These paintings on sago palm bark decorate the undersides of roofs as well as the gables of ceremonial houses and depict, in abstract or figurative form, the ancestors or beliefs of the clans. Joined together, they line the ceilings or gables of these large, prestigious huts. The Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York features in its permanent collection a complete reconstruction of a hut roof decorated with painted bark of this type... Piece of sago bark and natural pigments. Used tracks. A pedestal is available upon request only. Photos by David & Amélie GODREUIL. Approx. 92 x 40 cm / EUR200, shipping included within Europe.
