Description

A sculpture composed of a natural shell of Nautilus pompilius, chosen for the regularity of its spiral and the sharpness of its brown striations. The shell is securely set within a curved metal structure, crafted from polished metal with a mirror-like finish, whose brilliance creates a sharp contrast with the organic material. The thick, perfectly shaped metal forms a supporting arm that envelops the shell and enhances its visual tension. The rectangular wooden base ensures stability and completes the work's aesthetic balance. Condition Shell intact, with no cracks. Shiny metal, free of oxidation. Stable structure. Biographical Note -- Gabriella Binazzi Gabriella Binazzi, an Italian artist and designer active in the 1960s and 1970s, is known for her sculptures and decorative objects made from
