Description

Pair of decorated majolica plates from a kiln in central Italy (Castelli d'Abruzzo), 20th century. One of the two is signed on the back: De Angelis A. Elegant pair of majolica plates framed with wooden borders. Dimensions: Each plate: 32 cm in diameter with frame: 40 cm. Both depict mythological scenes: "The Abduction of Europa": Zeus, having transformed himself into a white bull to seduce Europa, allows her to climb onto his back so he can abduct her and take her to Crete. Three other women appear in the painted scene. - "Forest Idyll": a faun, playing the horn, attempts to seduce a nymph accompanied by another female figure, while two cherubs, lying at their feet, play with symbolic objects, including a mirror and several amphorae.
