Description

An elegant pair of Art Nouveau-style lamps, consisting of two regule vases with a brown patina, decorated with foliage and small fruits in slight relief. A winged cherub sits atop the neck of each vase; the two figures are arranged facing each other to form a true matching pair. Each lamp rests on a circular base made of blond onyx, whose light hues provide a lovely contrast to the brown patina of the regule. The lampshades were created in the workshop specifically for this pair. Made of printed cardboard laminated onto polyphane, they are constructed using traditional methods and assembled at the back with small brads. Their designs are also arranged in opposition, echoing the two cherubs on the lamps. The lampshades can also be sold separately if desired. The electrical wiring has been
