Description

A set of architectural and decorative elements carved from oak, taken from a 19th-century Flemish-style piece of furniture. They can be used as decorative elements, but also as unique hooks thanks to the rings (e.g., for hanging towels, dish towels, or other creative uses). They consist of two carved wall sconces featuring a lion's mouth, a brass ring between the fangs, small putti faces, and four additional elements with lion's mouths. Period: late 19th century. Condition: as found, with wear and minor surface imperfections. The dimensions vary; the rings are all identical. - Dimensions of the two large pieces: 38 x 7.6 cm. Depth: 11 cm. - Dimensions of the two medium elements: 15.3 x 7 cm. Depth: 5.5 cm. - Dimensions of the two small pieces: 13.2 x 8 cm. Depth: 6.6 cm. Diameter of the rings: 4.9
