Description

A two-part walnut cabinet with two doors on the lower section and 12 cardboard file boxes in the upper section. These boxes are decorated with strips of leather book bindings. They show signs of use. This filing cabinet is a professional piece of furniture (used by a notary or similar), in which notes--known as "minutes"--were filed. The great originality of this piece lies in the decoration of the cardboard boxes. It is in good condition, ready for use. Dated to the late 19th or early 20th century. Depth of the lower section: 61 cm. Depth of the upper section: 34 cm
