Description

A pair of gilded bronze incense burners shaped like a small neoclassical temple divided into three sections by pilasters with Corinthian capitals, topped by a central dome, openwork with a star-shaped motif and an urn with a lid in the center, resting on a tripartite red marble base. The gilded bronze needs cleaning; the exposed parts, as seen in the photos, have superb gilding. In very good overall condition; the bronze parts require cleaning. France or the Baltic region, early 19th century
