Around 1911, the company moved its factory to Montelupo to facilitate the distribution of its products by rail. Its 1914 catalog featured more than 1,000 different models. Before joining Bitossi in 1935, Aldo Londi worked for Fanciullacci. The company produced ceramics in many different styles and closely followed the trends and tastes of the time.In 1966, the decision was made to expand and open an additional factory in Florence, a move that proved to be its undoing: demand for ceramics had stagnated in Europe, and the company's heyday was over. Artistic quality declined, and all operations ceased in 1988.Here are a few other ceramic artists who worked for Fanciullacci:Vincenzo OssaniLorenzo and Giovacchino CanneriDino and Mario ScappiniBruno BagnoliBenvenuto Staderini
