Description

Dimensions: 19 cm in diameter, Weight: 0.5 kg.
A beautiful cast-iron paten from Berlin dating from 19th century, crafted with great finesse. It faithfully reproduces the famous pewter paten by Paulus Öham the Younger (1634-1671), whose historical compositions are admirable. On centre appears the emperor, horseback, while the six elector princes, recognizable by their coats of arms, converge on this solemn encounter. Sliding between each horseman are grimacing masks with varied expressions, adding rhythm and whimsy. The use of iron, an emblematic material of Berlin foundries, ensures exceptional preservation of reliefs. The details remain sharp and deep, allowing the viewer to fully appreciate the iconographic richness and quality of engraving on the original model. Condition: No
