Description

Framed oil on panel, view of the Château Royales in Collioure, with the harbor and beach in the foreground and the Albères Mountains in the background--a mountain range that extends into the Mediterranean Sea. This Catalan town inspired many Fauvist and modern painters. Henri MARTIN painted the tower there in 1920; Paul SIGNAC painted the beach; MATISSE and DUFY would serve as the foundation for the Fauvist movement... This luminous painting was created by Robert PAVARD (1922-2009). He was a heir to Post-Impressionism from the Rouen School, where he studied art. His many travels enriched his classical palette with warmer hues, resulting in this luminous painting. In good condition, unsigned.
