Description

Sculptural and spectacular, the Hiroshima lamp is an iconic piece of 1970s Italian design. Its imposing smoked glass shade, with its organic and generous lines, appears to float above a wide, cylindrical opal glass base. The contrast between the almost black depth of the upper section and the soft, milky light of the base gives it a striking presence. When lit, Hiroshima transforms into a true light sculpture: the light diffuses delicately through the opaline glass, while the smoked glass reveals its curves and subtle reflections. With its futuristic, mysterious, and decidedly Space Age look, this lamp embodies all the boldness of 1970s Italian design. More than just a light fixture, it is a collector's item, capable on its own of lending character and sophistication to a contemporary or vintage interior.
