Description

A coastal scene featuring two small figures standing on a rocky outcrop on the left, facing turbulent waves crashing against imposing cliffs, attributed to the painter Karl (or Charles) Joseph Kuwasseg. Steep chalk or rocky cliffs rise on the left, bathed in contrasting light beneath a dramatic, cloudy sky, while the churning sea roars against the shore. In the background, high on the hill, the ruins of a tower or a fortified castle can be seen. Style, typical of 19th-century Romanticism, characterized by a dramatic atmosphere, a heavy sky, and strong contrasts of light on the rock. gilded wood frame
