Description

In the 1950s, some designers--in contrast to the most uncompromising modernists--chose to return to the purest form of classicism. This results in elegant pieces such as this silver-plated metal lamp shaped like a Doric column, which will easily fit into both a classic and a more modern decor. Of fine quality with French hallmarks and a lovely patina, it is in excellent condition. It would be advisable to complete the electrical wiring (I can do this) or have it redone to meet current standards by an electrician. A beautiful lampshade that matches your interior will add a personal touch to this lovely accessory.
