Description

We are pleased to present this antique Italian display cabinet, crafted from solid larch wood and dating back to the late 19th century. This piece features the typical characteristics of a display cabinet or small bookcase, with simple, balanced lines that combine functionality with rustic charm. Crafted from solid larch wood with visible warm grain and a finish that highlights the wood's natural knots. The upper section features a shaped pediment with a molded frame that breaks up the linearity and lends the piece an elegant appearance. It features a single door with clear glass, ideal for displaying books or collectibles. The interior is lined with wallpaper typical of restoration projects and features two shelves. Two practical drawers separate the two sections. The lower section, with a closed door, allows you to
