Description

A pair of oil paintings on panel depicting landscapes with rural scenes, painted by an Italian-Flemish artist in the second half of the 17th century. Of remarkable pictorial quality, these works show similarities to the painting styles of the early and mid-17th century, from Jan Roos to Rosa da Tivoli. The artist was active in Italy in the mid-17th century and requires further study for identification. The red-lacquered fir wood frames are contemporary with the paintings. The paintings measure A certificate of authenticity is included with the sale.
