Description

Coffee table made of Indian rosewood and mahogany, crafted in England in the late 19th century. The rectangular rosewood top is embellished with elegant maple fillets and floral inlays created from various woods. The central, truncated-pyramid-shaped leg is decorated with leaf-shaped grecs inlaid with maple at the corners and floral motifs on all four sides, which are harmoniously repeated in the molded base. The turned feet and ebonized moldings complete the refined aesthetic of this period piece, making it a distinctive example of English craftsmanship from that era.
