Description

Empire-style mahogany display bookcase - 19th century
Beautiful Empire-style display bookcase from the 19th century, crafted from mahogany and mahogany veneer. It features a highly ornate front, framed by two freestanding columns characteristic of the Empire period, adorned with finely chased gilded bronze capitals and bands. The upper section opens with a large glass door, revealing an interior fitted with shelves for displaying books, collectibles, or decorative items. The lower section opens with two drawers, whose fronts showcase the mahogany's beautiful grain. They are adorned with beautiful gilded bronze lock plates. The piece is topped by a molded cornice with stepped projections, giving the cabinet a sober and elegant silhouette, perfectly representative of Empire-style
