

18th-century Delft Earthenware Tiles In A Frame

750 EUR

Signature : Delft

Period : 18th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Ceramic

Length : 123

Width : 37

Description

Decorative oak panel with Delft faience tiles
A large decorative oak panel, adorned with twelve Delft tiles in shades of blue, arranged around a central octagonal dish, possibly from the 17th century. The twelve square tiles within an octagonal frame present a charming array of Dutch scenes: windmills, landscapes animated by figures and animals, shepherds, horse-drawn carriages, architecture, and river scenes. Each tile thus constitutes a small, self-contained painting, painted in blue on a white background. In the center is a plate with a particularly rich floral decoration, composed of flowers, foliage, and ornamental motifs in the tradition of Dutch earthenware. The tiles have been assembled into an oak panel specially designed to showcase them. The woodwork, punctuated by molded

Dealer

Antiquités Frédéric Sportis

Antiquaire généraliste du 18ème siècle au 20ème siècle.

Mobile : 0608034605

15, rue la Grange Batelière

Paris 75009

octagonal panels, evokes historicist designs inspired by 17th- and 18th-century Dutch interiors. Probably dating from the late 19th or early 20th century, incorporating 18th-century earthenware elements. In very good overall condition; one tile has shifted and needs to be repositioned.