French Coffee Table From The 1970s Made Of Belgian Black Marble, Gilded Bronze, And Wrought Iron

3 500 EUR

Period : 20th century

Condition : Très bon état

Description

Elegant and sculptural, this French coffee table from the 1970s combines an imposing Belgian black marble top with a finely crafted wrought-iron frame, accented with gilded bronze details. It stands out for its richly ornamented metal base, composed of volutes, scrolls, and curvilinear elements inspired by plant forms. Its design evokes the ornamental vocabulary of Art Nouveau, reinterpreted through the eclectic decorative taste that characterized refined French interiors of the second half of the 20th century. The visual lightness and fluidity of the wrought-iron base contrast with the solidity and architectural presence of the Belgian black marble tabletop. This deliberate juxtaposition of stone and metal creates a subtle balance between mass and transparency, structure and ornamentation. The handcrafted character of the iron is particularly appealing, with its irregularities and subtle variations bearing witness to the traditional craftsmanship employed in its creation. The gilded bronze elements add an extra touch of warmth and refinement to the overall design. With its generous proportions and strong sculptural presence, this table fits perfectly as a centerpiece in a living room and is particularly well-suited to eclectic, classic, Art Nouveau-inspired, or sophisticated contemporary interiors. The table bears the marks of its history, notably surface wear and traces of oxidation/rust on the iron, which attest to its age and use and contribute to its authentic vintage character.
