Description

Pontorson Market - Oil on plywood, signed Cuguen. A beautiful oil painting on plywood depicting the Pontorson market in Normandy, with a bustling market scene in the foreground featuring numerous figures and vendors. The artist captures the atmosphere of a traditional market with a very free, energetic, and generously impastoed brushstroke. The market stalls, figures, and historic facades are rendered with quick, colorful brushstrokes in a palette dominated by blues, grays, browns, and ochres. The composition is particularly lively, with a beautiful sense of depth created by the houses and rooftops that extend into the background. The painting has a post-Impressionist and expressive style, emphasizing texture and sensation rather than precise detail. Signature: Cuguen, lower beautiful antique carved and gilded wooden frame, decorated with stylized foliage.A small-scale, particularly decorative work, notable for its regional subject matter and its very lively painterly treatment. The reference to Pontorson also lends this painting a documentary and local character sought after by collectors of market scenes and Norman art.
