Description

Silver-plated tray - 19th century
Elegant silver-plated serving tray, beautifully presented, with a flowing, scalloped shape, set against a rich Louis XV-style decoration. The rim is adorned with fillet molding and numerous relief ornaments featuring foliage, shells, and rocaille scrolls. The two side handles, generously openwork and finely molded, feature a particularly intricate design of foliage and volutes. The bottom of the tray is entirely adorned with a delicate engraving of floral and botanical motifs--including scrolls, foliage, flowers, and floral cartouches--arranged around an elegant central medallion. This medallion features a richly rendered "B" monogram, set within a border of foliage and palmettes. The composition, highly decorative and perfectly symmetrical,
