Description

A beautiful painting from the mid-19th century, a mountain landscape with a waterfall; a high mountain range in the background; a multi-tiered waterfall, which forms the central axis of the composition; intricately rendered vegetation in the foreground; and a couple by the water's edge, included specifically to provide a sense of scale against the vastness of the landscape. Undoubtedly from the Swiss school of Romantic landscape painting in the spirit of the painter Alexandre Calame. In excellent condition; a minor restoration was performed in the past (see photo), and the painting has been cleaned. Dimensions: H 46 x W 39 cm
