Description

England circa 1780: "V/V Textile Design," pen and ink, 52 × 54 cm on sheet. Signs of handling, dust, and tears along the edges. Design featuring a bowl and flowering branches. These designs were intended to serve as patterns for embroiderers (often Indian) who worked on silk taffeta to create the textiles used for the gowns of the ladies of the court. These five designs come from a Christie's auction in 2002. Please feel free to ask us for photos or additional information by email or phone.
