Description

A beautiful low sideboard in solid cherry wood, from the Louis XV period, second half of the 18th century, likely crafted in the Bresse region. The front features two doors with molded and scalloped panels and a drawer along the bottom. The front is particularly decorative with its dynamic panels, its lower rail featuring extensive scalloped detailing, and its slightly arched base, all characteristic of regional Louis XV furniture. High-quality cherry wood with a warm patina and very lively grain. Antique iron hardware, including long pins and ornate lock plates. The back, constructed from wide antique planks, as well as the structural elements and the lock and key, attest to traditional craftsmanship. An authentic and inviting piece with interesting proportions, suitable for use as
