Description

A 19th-century Piedmontese cabinet made of lacquered and painted poplar, a remarkable example of Italian craftsmanship from that period. The front doors are embellished with Art Nouveau-style painted panels depicting a young woman holding a bouquet of flowers, conveying elegance and attention to artistic detail. At the bottom, a drawer provides additional storage space while maintaining the cabinet's slender and functional structure. The painted wood lends the piece a refined presence, making it a work of art as well as a functional piece of furniture. ANMOAM0319820
