Description

A refined Belgian Art Deco stool from around 1925, crafted in solid walnut with a dark leather seat. The design is characterized by its architectural simplicity; two vertical side panels joined by a recessed seat frame, creating a balanced interplay of mass and void. The warm tone of the walnut contrasts elegantly with the deep patina of the leather, both showing gentle signs of age and use that enhance the piece's authenticity. This stool embodies the early Art Deco pursuit of geometric purity and craftsmanship, bridging decorative tradition and modernist clarity. Compact yet sculptural, it serves equally well as a seat, side table, or accent piece in refined interiors.
