Description

1910 table lamp, made of alabaster and pewter, Art Nouveau. This magnificent Art Nouveau table lamp, dating from 1910, is a collector's item that perfectly embodies the organic elegance of the early twentieth century. It consists of a pewter base crafted with the fluid lines typical of the era and a bowl made of natural alabaster. The translucency of the alabaster allows for a soft and warm diffusion of light, highlighting the stone's unique veining. This Art Nouveau table lamp is a transitional work of art where the sturdiness of metal meets the delicacy of stone. Please contact us before placing an order to confirm availability.
