Description

Directoire-Period Chest of Drawers - Siena, late 18th century
An elegant Sienese chest of drawers from the Directoire period (circa 1795-1800), finely paneled in walnut. The piece features clean, minimalist lines typical of late 18th-century neoclassical style, with a slightly curved front and three large drawers. The original light-colored marble top adds refinement and functionality. The tall, turned legs lend the structure a sense of height and lightness. An authentic antique piece, ideal for elegant interiors, historic settings, or high-end collections.
