Description

A patinated bronze sculpture depicting a richly harnessed elephant carrying a palanquin on its back, topped by a figure. The composition is exceptionally detailed, featuring a blue-and-red polychrome decoration accented with gilding, embellished with ornamental motifs, fringes, and finely crafted tassels. The elephant features a dark patina that highlights the numerous details of its anatomy and harness. The figure, dressed in traditional attire and holding a bow, elegantly completes this exotic scene. Signed Franz Bergman, this work reflects the Orientalist aesthetic and the excellence of Viennese craftsmanship in the late 19th century.
