Description

Christ Suffering Insults - Polychrome carved wood - Religious folk art, late 17th century A devotional sculpture carved from wood and painted in multiple colors, depicting Christ Mocked, seated with his hands bound in front of him and his head bowed in an attitude of resignation. At his feet, a skull evoking Golgotha reinforces the symbolic dimension of the representation. Description Christ is depicted seated on a stylized masonry seat, clad in a perizonium and crowned with thorns. The deliberately expressive rendering of the face and anatomy, along with the direct and vigorous carving, place this work within the tradition of European religious folk art. Condition The piece retains its original polychrome paint with small imperfections and visible losses that give
