Description

Oil on canvas. 18th-century Northern European school. Near a small cluster of buildings, along a dirt road, a scene of everyday life unfolds, brought to life by various figures: in the foreground on the right, two hunters offer their game and some fruit to a pregnant woman riding a horse, accompanied by her partner; in the background, a couple of women sit on the ground resting with their children; one of them is breastfeeding; and there are also groups of people chatting, while others are perched on the haystacks covered beneath the barn. The figures stand out due to the vivid colors of their clothing against the nearly monochromatic background of earth tones, with the buildings blending into the flat, barren landscape. The painting, still on its original canvas, shows signs of a small tear on the
