Description

A pair of late 18th-century Louis XV-style andirons featuring large, stylized volutes supporting a typical 18th-century couple in period attire. A high-quality piece that once adorned French manors and castles. They would work very well in a fireplace or as beautiful lamp bases on a dresser. There are traces of gilding on the bronze. Sold as-is, as purchased from the property, which explains the low price. The figures wobble slightly; the lady is missing a nut, and this same andiron is missing a rear leg.
